PROPOSAL (You have 0 complete proposals, 1 incomplete proposal, and 0 withdrawn proposals)

Core4 is the premier conference for building and refining the core skills every learning and development professional needs to succeed in their career. This conference aims to advance attendees' careers through new and renewed professional connections, new ideas, new perspectives, skill development, and practical advice in the L & D industry. Core4 presentations are intended to share practical advice and opportunities to learn skills that attendees can immediately apply in their work.

What we're looking for in Core4 proposals

We're accepting proposals for sessions that strongly connect to one of the four key pillars of the event:

- Evaluating Impact
- Instructional Design
- Training Delivery and Facilitation
- Emerging Trends

This year, there are three session formats you can choose from:

- Industry Insights: 60-minute traditional presentations
- Power Hour: 60-minute interactive sessions
- · Quick Wins: 30-minute sessions on a narrow theme, software, case study, or skill.

While this event focuses on the fundamental pillars of L&D, it's not just for beginners. We're looking for valuable sessions for seasoned professionals looking for new inspiration and introductory sessions for people new to the field.

We're also watching for talks that can help people shape their career paths in the L&D field and session delivery ideas that foster a sense of connection and community with attendees.

This year's event takes place September 29-October 1, 2025, in Orlando, Florida-and we'd love to have you play a part in it.

Presenting at Core4 is not only an opportunity to build your professional reputation, but it's also a chance to use your valuable insights to help others in the L&D community.

To make it easier for you to be here, we offer one complimentary registration for the conference and one night's stay at the conference hotel for up to two session speakers.

NEW IN 2025: This year, we'll be live-streaming a small selection of sessions to our virtual conference attendees. Session proposals don't have to work in a hybrid format to be considered for acceptance. But if your session can easily be adapted for hybrid delivery, note that in your proposal.

Ready to start your proposal? Select "Click here to begin a new proposal" button below. And if you have questions or want to discuss your session ideas, don't hesitate to contact speakers@td.org.

Deadline to submit is February 28, 2025.

Once a proposal has been submitted and marked "complete," you will receive an email confirmation. If you do not receive an email confirmation, your proposal was not submitted or marked complete.

Proposal Type Descriptions

Industry Insights

If you plan to examine a topic in depth, propose your idea as an Industry Insight talk. These more traditional 60-minute sessions share knowledge that can be applied immediately.

Power Hour

Are you planning a high-energy session where attendees will spend a significant portion of the time on discussions and activities? Propose it as a Power Hour session. These interactive 60-minute sessions allow attendees to explore, experiment with, and apply new skills right in the session room.

Quick Wins

Have a useful session idea that won't take a full hour to cover? Then, submit it as a Quick Win session. These fast-paced 30-minute sessions cover a narrow theme, software, case study, or skill, sample topics include: 6 tips for boosting engagement in virtual classrooms, your favorite inexpensive apps for video creation, lessons learned from launching a new compliance training program, or quick steps for designing scenario-based quiz questions. NOTE: if you're new to conference speaking, these shorter sessions are a perfect way to get started.
